123 species on eBird.

This is a short canal. that originates from Khao Bang Tao before ending at the Takua Pa River. There is a small forest area. that is full of biological diversity Strange plants that grow Along the banks of Khlong Sang Neh Most tourists come to take a canoe to admire the beauty of nature at Khlong Sang Nae. It is to see the ancient banyan tree, hundreds of years old, spreading its branches along the canal. In some parts it hangs in front of us like a curtain of a banyan tree tunnel for you to take a boat ride through. Another highlight of the cruise. It is to see snakes, including Green Snakes, Mangrove snake (Boiga dendrophila), and pythons, which you don't have to be afraid of being dangerous because we are watching the snakes from a distance. And during the day the snake will sleep still. It curls up against a tree and waits to come out to feed at night. But for bird watching The guide will take you on a bird-watching tour on the 200-meter cement walkway. Some of the common local birds include: Ruddy Kingfisher, Mangrove Pitta, Black-and-Red Broadbill, Chestnut-breasted Malkoha, Orange-bellied Flowerpecker, Van Hansell's Sunbird, Olive-winged Bulbul, etc.
